

STATE of WISCONSIN

OFFICE of the GOVERNOR

Proclamation

WHEREAS; remanufacturing refers to the industrial process by which a previously leased, used, worn, sold, or non-functional part or product is returned to a “like-new” or “better-than-new” condition—from both a quality and performance perspective—through a controlled, reproducible, and sustainable process; and

WHEREAS; a multi-billion-dollar industry that supports tens of thousands of jobs across the country, remanufacturing has been nationally recognized as both economically smart and environmentally friendly, specifically for the industry’s significant ability to divert end-of-life products from local landfills, conserve energy, and reduce raw material consumption; and

WHEREAS; as the remanufacturing industry continues to grow and develop, remanufacturing professionals remain committed to keeping up to date on key trends in technology, sustainability, and workforce development, and supporting the continued success of this industry remains a key part of supporting the strength of the state’s robust manufacturing industry and heritage; and

WHEREAS; today, the state of Wisconsin joins remanufacturing professionals, businesses, educational institutions, and nonprofit organizations in celebrating the profound economic and environmental significance of the remanufacturing industry in the state and country, and in encouraging all Wisconsinites to learn more about the benefits of remanufactured products;
